AMERICAN MOVING AND STORAGE ASSOCIATION

OVERSEAS

Chairman's Message/Message du président du conseil

Wow! The Canadian moving industry continues to change quickly and often. This year has been no different. Here are some of my personal musings and meditations....

Driver and labour shortages continue to dominate the landscape. Things are getting progressively worse in this area. Movers who are innovative in moving goods by common carrier, container or rail will be the ones that are least affected by the shortage of drivers. Wouldn't it be ironic if rail once again became the dominant mode of transportation that it was until the 1950s? Sometimes you have to go backwards before you can move ahead.

The Federal Government has awarded a new seven-year contract, and allocated new volumes to the incumbent bidders. In talking to members, I am hearing that most players are disappointed that the bidding model has resulted in pricing that is insufficient to allow participants to keep pace with the increased demands most movers are experiencing with the higher costs of labour, fuel, insurance, real estate and the like. Combined with the fact that, for the first time in over twenty years, movers are experiencing tariff increases at the same time as smaller discounts, it is my belief that the value of this business will diminish over the contract term and it is my concern that by the time the contract expires in 2013, it will be difficult to convince our diminished driver pool to service this segment of business.

Your association is moving forward. We boast all but one of the major van lines as members. We welcome Mayflower Van Lines back into our association and our industry. Our membership is at its highest level and our finances are in their best shape since the association's re-inception in 1996.

We are seeing new mover, supplier and international members from across Canada and around the world. It's all part of CAM's efforts to be the forum where the industry gets together to exchange information.

The Canadian Certified Mover program is proving to be a valuable tool to consumers and ultimately the members that are using it in their marketing programs. You will be seeing that more of the Certified Movers advertise this accreditation in print and on their trucks. If you have not already become a certified mover, please contact the association office for details.

Chairman, Canadian Association of Movers

Oh la la ! L'industrie canadienne du déménagement continue de changer rapidement et souvent et rien n'est différent cette année. Je partage avec vous mes réflexions et méditations. La pénurie de camionneurs et de main-d'œuvre continue à dominer le panorama et la situation se détériore progressivement. Ceux qui font appel à l'innovation pour déménager des effets en utilisant les transporteurs communs, conteneurs ou trains seront les moins affectés par la pénurie de camionneurs. Ne serait-il pas dérisoire si le chemin de fer devenait à nouveau le principal moyen de transport tout comme c'était le cas jusqu'aux années 1950 ? Parfois il faut reculer pour avancer.

Le gouvernement fédéral a octroyé un nouveau contrat de sept ans, et alloué de nouveaux volumes aux fournisseurs titulaires. Or, en discutant avec les membres, j'ai appris que la majorité des joueurs sont déçus du modèle d'enchères car il amène à fixer des prix insuffisants pour permettre à la plupart des déménageurs de suivre la cadence des coûts de main-d'œuvre, d'essence, d'assurance, de l'immobilier et autres coûts du même genre. Si nous ajoutons le fait que pour la première fois en plus de 20 ans les déménageurs doivent faire face à des hausses tarifaires en même temps qu'à de plus faibles remises, je pense que la valeur de ce négoce s'effritera pendant la durée du contrat et que d'ici son échéance en 2013, il sera difficile de convaincre notre bassin restreint de camionneurs de demeurer au service de ce segment des affaires.

Votre association gagne du terrain. Nous comptons dans nos rangs toutes les principales entreprises de fourgons automobiles sauf une. Nous souhaitons la bienvenue à Mayflower Van pour se joindre à nous de nouveau. L'affiliation ne s'est jamais si bien portée et il en va de même pour nos finances depuis la reconstitution de l'association en 1996.

Nous accueillons toujours de nouveaux déménageurs, fournisseurs et membres internationaux partout au Canada et dans le monde. Ce succès est attribuable en partie aux efforts de l'ACD qui se veut l'enseigne à laquelle les représentants de l'industrie s'adressent pour échanger des informations.

Le programme de certification des déménageurs canadiens procure un outil précieux aux consommateurs de même qu'aux membres qui l'utilisent dans leurs programmes de commercialisation. Vous verrez un plus grand nombre de déménageurs afficher leur accréditation en toutes lettres sur leurs camions. Si vous n'êtes pas encore un déménageur accrédité, veuillez contacter le bureau de l'association pour plus de détails.

President's Message/Message du président

There's no doubt that we Canadians like to pack up our belongings and take them on the road. We like to move, and not just to the next town over, but right across this huge country and overseas too. We've included a couple of articles in this issue that show the amount and location of this activity. These articles may provide you with useful information to help you to project your business workload for the next couple of years.

The first article is a Statistics Canada report that talks about the migration trends of Canadians, between July 1, 2003 and June 30, 2004. The statistics exclude local moves and are based on those folks who file taxes; they are consistent with data for the previous year, and give us a good idea about what we can expect for the next couple of years.

About a million and a half Canadians move every year. While almost a million people move within their province or territory, nearly one in five moves to another. When we move, we tend to move to Ontario or British Columbia. However the influx of immigrants to these areas tends to inflate the growth numbers. Toronto appears to be the busiest, with almost 300,000 people moving into, out of and around the city, followed by Montreal, with about 160,000 people.

The second article is the most recent quarterly report from the Canadian Real Estate Board on projected residential sales and house prices for 2006 and 2007. Resales in 2005 exceeded those in 2004. They are expected to slip a bit but remain high in 2006, at the second-highest-ever level, at just under a half-million residential sales, then taper further in 2007 to just over 400,000. Consistent with what we see in the Statistics Canada information, home sales are forecast to be highest in Ontario and British Columbia in both 2006 and 2007.

Together, these articles point to a mobile Canadian population that is moving towards larger population centres in 2006. And every one of these migrant families is a prospective sale for the moving and storage industry.

Stephen Cryne's article highlights the labour shortage in Canada. While efforts are being made by various government and non-government groups to attract Canadians into all trades and professions, the fact is that the shortage will be with us for a long time to come. As Larry Rosenberg, CAM's new Chairman notes, movers are going to have to be innovative to meet the demand, but I wonder why the pricing philosophy in our industry does not react in the way in which it does in every other industry when demand exceeds supply.

John Levi, President

Il n'y a aucun doute que nous, Canadiens, aimons emballer nos effets pour nous diriger vers de nouveaux horizons. Nous aimons déménager et non seulement dans les villes avoisinantes mais aussi à l'autre bout du pays, voire même outre-mer. Vous trouverez dans ce numéro quelques articles qui font ressortir le nombre et les régions où s'exercent les déménagements. Ces articles procurent des renseignements utiles qui vous aideront à estimer votre volume d'activités au cours des deux prochaines années.

Le premier article est un rapport de Statistique Canada qui expose les tendances de migration des Canadiens entre le 1<sup>er</sup> juillet 2003 et le 30 juin 2004. Les données excluent les déménagements locaux et ne tiennent compte que des personnes qui ont produit une déclaration d'impôt. Les chiffres sont compatibles avec ceux de l'an dernier et donnent une bonne idée de ce que nous pouvons espérer au cours des deux prochaines années.

Environ un million et demi de Canadiens déménagent chaque année. Bien que près d'un million de gens déménagent dans leur province ou territoire, près de un sur cinq vont ailleurs. Lorsque nous déménageons, nous allons surtout en Ontario ou en Colombie-Britannique. Toutefois, la venue d'immigrants dans ces régions a tendance à gonfler le taux de croissance. La région de Toronto semble être la plus active avec plus de 300 000 personnes qui s'y installent, déménagent dans les environs ou ailleurs, suivie de Montréal avec environ 160 000 personnes.

Le deuxième article est le tout dernier rapport trimestriel de l'Association canadienne de l'immeuble sur les ventes résidentielles prévues pour les années 2006 et 2007. La revente en 2005 a excédé les chiffres de 2004. Bien que l'on prévoit un léger recul en 2006, la demande demeurera forte, pour se situer au deuxième plus haut niveau avec juste en dessous d'un demi-million de ventes résidentielles. Cette baisse se poursuivra en 2007 où l'on prévoit juste au-dessus de 400 000 ventes. Compte tenu des renseignements de Statistique Canada, la vente des maisons devrait être plus élevée en Ontario et en Colombie-Britannique en 2006 et 2007.

Ces deux articles signalent une population canadienne mobile qui se déplace vers des centres plus populeux en 2006. Chacune de ces familles migrantes représente une vente possible pour l'industrie du déménagement et de l'entreposage.

L'article de Stephen Cryne souligne la pénurie de main-d'œuvre au Canada. Bien que les différents gouvernements et groupes du secteur privé fassent des efforts pour attirer les Canadiens et Canadiennes dans tous les métiers et toutes les professions, il n'en demeure pas moins que la carence de main-d'œuvre subsistera encore pendant longtemps. Comme l'indique Larry Rosenberg, le nouveau président du conseil de l'ACD, les déménageurs devront faire appel à l'innovation pour répondre à la demande mais je cherche à comprendre pourquoi la théorie des prix dans notre industrie ne réagit pas comme celle des autres industries quand la demande excède l'offre.

Foreign Workers: We Need Them, They're Out There, So Let's Get Serious

By Stephen Cryne

Within the next 10 years, in virtually every profession and in every industry, access to skilled labour will be the number one challenge.

Why is this an issue? In Canada on average women give birth to only 1.4 babies. We are not alone. From Australia to Japan, virtually every modern economy, with the exception of the United States, is faced with declining birth rates. We are simply not able to replace the number of people exiting the workforce for the foreseeable future.

In Canada it was once thought that the "baby boom echo" would be sufficient to replace existing workers, but the evidence tells us that is not the case. According to noted demographic expert David Baxter of the Urban Futures Institute based in Vancouver, "there is no 'echo boom' to pour into the labour force and it is not possible to give birth to adults. Increased immigration and reduced emigration will be required if our labour force is to grow."

By 2011 it is expected that immigration will account for all growth in the Canadian workforce. While we may have enough home-grown labour to replace workers, we will have no additional capacity to support business expansion. At a time when Canada needs to expand its trade both domestically and globally this is not a good situation.

Immigration is only one part of a complex solution to the issue. Canada also needs to develop a better approach to its apprenticeship and training programs to address specific shortages. In addition to developing a more highly skilled work-

Travailleurs étrangers: nous en avons besoin, ils sont là; profitons de cette ressource

Par Stephen Cryne

Au cours des dix prochaines années, dans pratiquement toutes les professions et dans toutes les industries, le défi principal consistera à accéder à de la main-d'œuvre qualifiée.

Pourquoi ? Au Canada, en moyenne, une femme donne naissance à seulement 1,4 bébés. Nous ne sommes pas seuls dans cette situation. De l'Australie au Japon, pratiquement chaque économie moderne, à l'exception de celle des États-Unis, est aux prises avec un taux de natalité décroissant. Nous ne sommes tout simplement pas en mesure de remplacer le nombre de personnes qui quitteront la population active dans avenir assez rapproché.

Au Canada, nous avons cru à un certain moment que la « génération de l'après baby-boom » serait suffisante pour remplacer les travailleurs actuels. Toutefois, la réalité démontre le contraire. Selon l'éminent expert en démographie David Baxter de l'Urban Futures Institute ayant son siège à Vancouver, « il n'existe pas de « génération de l'après baby-boom » à ajouter à la population active et il n'est pas possible de donner naissance à des adultes. Pour favoriser la croissance de notre population active, l'immigration doit augmenter et l'émigration doit diminuer ».

D'ici 2011, nous prévoyons que l'immigration représentera toute la croissance de la population active canadienne. Alors que nous aurons peut-être assez de main-d'œuvre locale pour remplacer les travailleurs, nous n'aurons pas de capacité supplémentaire pour soutenir l'expansion des entreprises. À cette période où le Canada a besoin de développer son commerce, tant à l'intérieur qu'à l'extérieur du force within Canada, attracting immigrant workers with the necessary skills must become a priority. And employers must find better ways to boost the skills of those immigrants with training and job experience. A study by Statistics Canada found that 70 per cent of immigrants settling in 2000 and 2001 had trouble entering the workforce.

The federal government recently announced changes to Canada's immigration policies. Those changes will focus more on family reunification, bringing more parents and grandparents into Canada. While the humanitarian objectives of those changes are laudable, they will not address the labour pool shortage.

Moreover, Canada's immigration system lacks co-ordination and integration. The federal government controls immigration and the provinces control the licensing and there are major differences between provinces and professions.

Relocation practices must be progressive and supportive to ensure that employees and recruits who are relocated to fill business needs can be focused on the job demands and not on problems caused by shortcomings in policy and benefits.

HR managers must also be thinking about developing programs that focus on integration of workers into the workforce. Such things as cultural and language training will be much in demand, not just for newcomers but also for existing staff to ensure smooth integration.

A Plan for Recognizing Foreign Credentials

How about pan-Canadian standards, and let's include Europe and the United States.

Part of the solution to future workforce shortages, says the Canadian Employee Relocation Council (CERC), lies in streamlining the recognition of credentials of foreign-trained workers.

Recently the CERC presented recommendations to that effect to the House of Commons Standing Committee on Citizenship and Immigration during cross-country consultations on federal immigration policies.

The recommendations urged that:

- Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) refrain from pre-adjudicating the issue of credential assessment at the immigration stage; and
- CIC should work with Human Resources and Skills Development Canada (HRSDC) and licensing and regulatory bodies, including stakeholders such as industry associations, toward a standardized, pan-Canadian model for the foreign professional credential assessment process.

The assessment process recommended by CERC would include:

- An international database of comparable/equivalent degrees and professional credentials and minimum educational qualifications, experience and language proficiency standards;
- A resource database that identifies the requirements that can be satisfied overseas prior to immigration by the foreign professional, such as language testing, and clearly identifies the requirements that must be undertaken and satisfied in Canada;
- A joint strategy developed among HRSDC, regulatory bodies, industry and employer associations and large-scale employers to initiate apprenticeship programs that provide an opportunity for foreign-trained professionals to fulfill the required Canadian work experience for licensing;
- Implementation of professional mentoring programs to ensure the protection of the public and the competence levels to be achieved and maintained by foreign professionals;
- Negotiation of bilateral agreements between professional regulatory bodies in Canada and overseas, and with the United States and the European Union in particular, which will lead to abbreviated credential recognition for professionals already accredited in those countries who are graduates of recognized educational institutions; and
- Particular emphasis in negotiating bilateral agreements between regulatory bodies in different jurisdictions to achieve mutual credential recognition for professional occupations designated by the North American Free Trade Agreement, and expand the list of eligible occupations.

pays, cette situation n'est pas favorable.

L'immigration ne constitue qu'une partie de la solution complexe à ce problème. Le Canada doit également développer une meilleure approche relativement à ses programmes d'apprentissage et de stages afin de s'attaquer à des pénuries spécifiques. En plus de développer une population active plus qualifiée au Canada, attirer des travailleurs immigrants qui possèdent les compétences nécessaires doit constituer une priorité. De leur côté, les employeurs doivent trouver de meilleures façons de favoriser les compétences de ces immigrants avec de la formation et de l'expérience de travail. Une étude effectuée par Statistiques Canada révèle que 70 % des immigrants qui se sont établis au pays en 2000 et 2001 ont éprouvé des difficultés à pénétrer le marché du travail.

Le gouvernement fédéral a récemment annoncé des modifications aux politiques canadiennes d'immigration. Ces modifications mettent davantage l'accent sur la réunification des familles, ce qui amène plus de parents et de grands-parents au Canada. Alors que ces objectifs humanitaires sont louables, ils ne remédieront pas aux pénuries dans le bassin des travailleurs.

De surcroît, le système d'immigration du Canada manque de coordination. Le gouvernement fédéral contrôle l'immigration et les provinces contrôlent l'octroi de permis, et il existe des différences considérables entre les provinces et entre les professions.

Les pratiques de relocalisation doivent être progressives et offrir un soutien aux travailleurs afin d'assurer que les employés et les personnes embauchées qui sont relocalisés pour répondre à des besoins d'entreprise peuvent se concentrer sur les exigences relatives à leur poste et non sur les problèmes causés par les lacunes dans les politiques et les avantages.

Les gestionnaires de ressources humaines doivent également penser à créer des programmes qui se concentrent sur l'intégration des travailleurs à la population active. La formation sur la langue et la culture, parmi d'autres mesures, sera grandement en demande, non seulement pour les nouveaux arrivants mais aussi pour le personnel existant afin d'assurer une intégration en douceur.

Un programme pour reconnaître les titres de compétences étrangers

Des normes pancanadiennes : pourquoi pas ? Incluons aussi l'Europe et les Etats-Unis Selon le Canadian Employee Relocation Council (CERC), une partie de la solution au problème de pénuries futures de la main-d'œuvre consiste à simplifier la reconnaissance des titres de compétences des travailleurs formés à l'étranger.

Récemment, le CERC a présenté des recommandations en ce sens au comité permanent de la citoyenneté et de l'immigration de la Chambre des communes durant des consultations tenues à travers le pays sur les politiques d'immigration fédérales.

Les recommandations faisaient valoir avec insistance que :

- Citoyenneté et immigration Canada (CIC) devrait s'abstenir de statuer sur la question de l'évaluation des titres de compétences au stade de l'immigration ; et
- CIC devrait travailler de concert avec Ressources humaines et Développement des compétences Canada (RHDC) ainsi qu'avec des organismes de réglementation (incluant de réglementation professionnelle), notamment des parties prenantes telles les associations industrielles, vers un modèle pancanadien normalisé pour le processus d'évaluation des titres de compétences professionnels étrangers.

Le processus d'évaluation recommandé par le CERC inclurait :

- Une banque de données internationale de diplômes et de titres de compétences professionnels comparables ou équivalents ainsi que des normes minimales de niveaux de connaissances, d'expérience et d'aptitudes linguistiques ;
- Une banque de ressources qui détermine les exigences auxquelles le professionnel étranger peut satisfaire, à l'étranger, avant son immigration, telles que l'évaluation des connaissances linguistiques, et qui détermine clairement les exigences auxquelles doit satisfaire ce professionnel au Canada ;
- Une stratégie conjointe conçue au sein de RHDC, des organismes de réglementation, des associations industrielles et d'employeurs ainsi que de grands employeurs pour instaurer des programmes d'apprentissage qui offrent aux professionnels formés à l'étranger une occasion de posséder l'expérience de travail canadienne requise pour l'octroi d'une licence ;
- L'implantation de programmes de mentorat professionnel pour assurer la protection du public et les niveaux de compétence à atteindre et à maintenir pour les professionnels étrangers ;
- La négociation d'ententes bilatérales entre les organismes de réglementation professionnelle au Canada et à l'étranger, particulièrement aux États-Unis et dans l'Union européenne, ce qui mènera à la reconnaissance restreinte des titres de compétences pour les professionnels ayant obtenu leurs diplômes d'établissements d'enseignement reconnus dans leur pays et où ils sont déjà agréés ; et
- Une instance particulière mise dans la négociation d'ententes bilatérales entre les organismes de réglementation de différents territoires afin d'atteindre une reconnaissance mutuelle des titres de compétences pour les professions libérales désignées par l'Accord de libre-échange nord-américain et afin d'étendre la liste des professions admissibles.

MLS® Home Sales to Ease in 2006

Annual sales activity to reach second highest level on record

Canada's resale housing market will turn in its second best year on record in 2006, according to a forecast prepared by The Canadian Real Estate Association (CREA).

After setting its fifth consecutive annual record in 2005 at 483,250 units, CREA expects national resale housing activity to slip lower by 4.4 per cent to 462,105 units in 2006. Activity is also projected to dip a further 5.2 per cent in 2007.

Rising interest rates are expected to cause resale housing activity to moderate in all provinces except Alberta in 2006. The annual increase in sales activity projected for Alberta reflects economic, employment and population growth prospects arising from investment in the energy sector.

The national MLS® residential average price reached $249,111 in 2005, representing an annual increase of 10.2 per cent. This was the seventh consecutive annual record for residential average price and the largest annual increase since 1989. CREA projects that average price will continue to climb in 2006 and 2007, but annual gains are expected to be smaller than in 2005. Annual increases in average price are expected to remain above 10 per cent in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, where the resale housing markets should remain tight.

"Further price increases and rising interest rates will cause resale housing demand to ease in 2006," said CREA's Chief Economist Gregory Klump.

"The Canadian economy is expected to grow slightly faster than the estimated non-inflationary rate of 2.9 per cent this year," said Klump. "Given the tightness of Canada's product and labour markets, the Bank of Canada continues to signal its intention to hike the trend-setting Bank rate. To keep inflation under wraps, the Bank rate is widely expected to be hiked by a further one-quarter of a percentage point in March."

"Further increases in U.S. interest rates are almost done. Additional expected increases in Canada's Bank rate will keep the Canada-U.S. currency exchange rate strong, and help to keep inflation under continued on page 14

L'activité annuelle atteindra son deuxième plus haut niveau enregistré à ce jour

D'après les prévisions publiées par l'Association canadienne de l'immeuble (ACI), le marché immobilier de la revente au Canada pourrait enregistrer, en 2006, sa deuxième meilleure année à ce jour.

Après avoir établi un cinquième record annuel d'affilée (483 250 logements) en 2005, l'ACI prévoit que les ventes résidentielles sur le marché de la revente accuseront un recul de 4,4 p. 100 à l'échelle nationale, pour atteindre 462 105 logements en 2006, et baisseront d'un autre 5,2 p. 100 en 2007.

En 2006, on s'attend que les taux d'intérêt à la hausse auront un effet modérateur sur le marché résidentiel de la revente dans toutes les provinces, sauf en Alberta. La hausse annuelle des ventes prévue en Alberta tient compte des perspectives économique, d'emploi et démographique, relatives à l'investissement dans le secteur de l'énergie.

Le prix moyen résidentiel S.I.A.®/MLS® a atteint 249 111 $ au pays en 2005, ce qui représente une hausse annuelle de 10,2 p. 100 : le septième record annuel consécutif pour le prix moyen résidentiel et l'augmentation annuelle la plus importante depuis 1989. L'ACI prévoit que le prix moyen poursuivra sa pente ascendante en 2006 et 2007, et que les gains annuels seront moins importants qu'en 2005. On s'attend que les hausses annuelles du prix moyen se maintiendront au-dessus de 10 p. 100, en Colombie-Britannique, Alberta et Saskatchewan, où, d'après les prévisions, les marchés résidentiels de la revente demeureront serrés.

légère baisse de la demande en maisons existantes en 2006 », affirme l'économiste en chef de l'ACI, Gregory Klump.

« Cette année, l'économie canadienne devrait s'accroître un peu plus rapidement que le taux estimatif non inflationniste de 2,9 p. 100 », déclare Klump. « Puisque les marchés des produits et du travail sont serrés à l'échelle nationale, la Banque du Canada a toujours l'intention de hausser le taux directeur. Pour maîtriser l'inflation, ce dernier devrait augmenter d'un autre quart de point de pourcentage en mars. » d'intérêt américains se feront bientôt sentir. Hauser davantage le taux directeur de la banque centrale favorisera le taux de change entre le Canada et les États-Unis, et aidera à lutter contre l'inflation. Puisque les obligations correspondent aux prévisions inflationnistes et les obligations sont calculées en fonction des taux hypothécaires, on s'attend que le taux hypothécaire ordinaire de cinq ans accusera une autre hausse maximale d'un demi-point de pourcentage cette année », précise Klump.

« D'autres augmentations des taux

« À la fin de 2005, le taux d'une hypothèque ordinaire de cinq ans s'établissait à 6,3 p. 100. Toutefois, une forte concurrence entre les prêteurs hypothécaires permet toujours aux emprunteurs d'obtenir un taux plus avantageux que le taux affiché. Des taux hypothécaires plus élevés conjugués à des hausses additionnelles du prix résidentiel auront un effet de freinage sur le marché de la revente cette année et en 2007 », prédit Klump.

« Une réduction de la TPS de sept à six pour cent serait un pas dans la bonne direction. Cela faciliterait l'accès à des résidences neuves, puisque cela permettrait aux acheteurs de maisons d'économiser 1 600 $ en impôt sur un logement neuf, dont le prix se situe à 250 000 $ », ajoute Klump.

control. Since bonds respond to inflation expectations and mortgage rates track bond yields, we expect the five-year conventional mortgage to rise by no more than another one-half of a percentage point this year," said Klump.

"At the end of 2005, the five-year conventional mortgage rate stood at 6.3 per cent. Stiff competition among mortgage lenders, however, continues to help borrowers negotiate discounts off the advertised rate. Higher mortgage rates and additional home price increases will gradually cool resale housing activity this year and in 2007," Klump predicted.

"A reduction in the GST from seven per cent to six per cent would be a good first step in improving housing affordability for newly constructed homes, since it would save homebuyers $1,600 in taxes on a new home priced at $250,000," added Klump.

Migration 2003/2004

Canadians were on the move between July 1, 2003 and June 30, 2004, but not quite to the same extent as in the same period a year earlier.

More than 1.54 million individuals moved in 2003/04, just short of the 1.57 million the year before. These data reflect moves between census metropolitan areas or census divisions as well as those who moved into or out of the country. Moves across town are excluded.

Of the 2003/04 total, an estimated 257,000 people changed provinces or territories, while more than 961,000 moved from one census division to another within their province or territory. (A census division is similar to a county or a regional municipality.) The remaining 331,000 persons are international migrants.

At the provincial level, most of the provinces and territories had net gains from migration. Relative to its population, Ontario registered the largest net gain with 10.4 persons for every 1,000 population, or 127,300 people in total. British Columbia was second with a net gain of 10.2, while Alberta was third with 8.3. Nunavut registered the largest net decline relative to its population with 5.1 per 1,000 persons, although the absolute numbers were small.

Among census metropolitan areas, Toronto had the highest net inflow of people. There were 78,344 more people moving into the metropolitan area than moving out. Vancouver ranked second with a net inflow of 28,339, followed by Montréal with a net inflow of 22,378.

These three metropolitan areas, Canada's largest, attracted about three-quarters of international immigrants who arrived in all the census metropolitan areas. About 65% of the people who moved into Toronto during 2003/04 came from outside the country, as did 50% of those who moved into Vancouver and 48% of those who moved into Montréal. Without immigrants, these urban centres would have incurred a net outflow of people during the past several years.

Relative to the size of its population, the census metropolitan area of Oshawa had the highest net inflow, with 21.5 people for every 1,000 people living there, followed by Toronto with 15.3. Vancouver and Kitchener each registered a net gain of 13.2 migrants per 1,000 population. Abbotsford, British Columbia followed closely with a net gain of 13.1 migrants, well above its net gain of 2.8 migrants per 1,000 of population the previous year.

For many years, Calgary was among the top three metropolitan areas in terms of net inflow of migrants per 1,000 population. In 2003/04, however, it slipped into the sixth position, although its rate of 11.5 migrants for every 1,000 population was higher than its rate in the previous year.

Les Canadiens se sont déplacés entre le 1er juillet 2003 et le 30 juin 2004, mais pas au même rythme qu'au cours de la même période l'année précédente.

Plus de 1,54 million de personnes ont déménagé en 2003-2004 comparativement à près de 1,57 million l'année précédente. Ces données portent sur les déplacements entre les régions métropolitaines de recensement ou les divisions de recensement, ainsi que sur le nombre de personnes qui sont entrées au pays ou qui l'ont quitté. Les déménagements à l'intérieur d'une même ville ont été exclus.

En 2003-2004, environ 257,000 personnes ont changé de province ou de territoire et plus de 961,000 sont passées d'une division de recensement à une autre dans la même province ou territoire. (Une division de recensement correspond à un comté ou à une municipalité régionale). Par ailleurs, 331,000 personnes étaient des migrants internationaux.

À l'échelon provincial, la plupart des provinces et des territoires ont enregistré un gain net de migrants. Par rapport à sa population, l'Ontario a affiché la plus forte hausse nette de migration (10,4 personnes pour 1,000 résidents), soit un influx net de 127,300 personnes. La Colombie-Britannique suivait avec un gain net de 10,2 migrants et l'Alberta venait ensuite (8,3 migrants). Le Nunavut a affiché la baisse la plus forte par rapport à sa population, soit 5,1 émigrants pour 1,000 habitants, quoique les nombres absolus aient été petits.

Parmi les régions métropolitaines de recensement (RMR), Toronto a affiché le plus important gain net. Il y a eu 78,344 personnes de plus qui ont emménagé dans la région métropolitaine qu'il y en a qui l'ont quittée. Vancouver suivait avec 28,339 personnes et Montréal avec un gain net de 22,378 personnes.

Ces trois régions métropolitaines sont les plus grandes au Canada et ont attiré près des trois-quarts des immigrants internationaux qui sont arrivés dans l'ensemble des RMR. Près de 65 % des nouveaux arrivants de Toronto en 2003-2004 provenaient de l'étranger. Vancouver (50 %) et Montréal (48 %) affichaient également un fort pourcentage d'immigrants provenant de l'étranger. Sans ces derniers, le nombre de personnes quittant ces trois RMR serait plus élevé que celui des personnes qui y arrivent et cette situation est observée depuis quelques années déjà.

Si l'on tient compte de la taille de la population, la région métropolitaine de recensement d'Oshawa a affiché la plus forte migration nette (21,5 personnes pour 1,000 habitants), suivie de Toronto (15,3 migrants). Vancouver et Kitchener ont enregistré chacune un gain net de 13,2 migrants par 1,000 habitants. Abbotsford (Colombie-Britannique) suivait de près avec un gain net de 13,1 migrants bien supérieur au gain net de 2,8 migrants par 1,000 habitants de l'année précédente.

Calgary a figuré durant plusieurs années parmi les trois premières RMR pour ce qui est de l'influx net de migrants par 1,000 résidents. Toutefois, en 2003-2004, elle a glissé au sixième rang, bien que son gain net était de 11,5 migrants par 1,000 habitants, en hausse par rapport au taux de l'année précédente.

Les personnes vivant aux alentours de Toronto et de Montréal continuent de migrer vers les banlieues. Parmi les divisions de recensement, la municipalité régionale de York, située au nord de Toronto, a affiché le plus fort gain net (38,1 migrants pour 1,000 habitants). Venaient ensuite les divisions de recensement de Mirabel, au nord de Montréal, avec 36,7 migrants et Peel, située à that of the region as a whole. (The median is the point where one-half of incomes are higher and half are lower.) For example, the median income of migrants into York was $24,400, which was 5% lower than the median of $25,600 for Ontario as a whole. Migrants into Peel had a median income of $23,500 or 8% lower than Ontario's median income.

Note: Migration data were derived by comparing addresses supplied on personal income tax returns filed in the spring of 2003 and 2004. They were adjusted to the 2003 July population estimates. Migration data reflect intraprovincial moves between census metropolitan areas or census divisions (areas such as counties, regional districts, and regional or district municipipalities), as well as interprovincial and international movements. To calculate total population change, both migration and natural increase (births minus deaths) must be taken into account.

Migration estimates are available for the provinces and territories, census metropolitan areas and census divisions. Five tables covering these levels of geography provide data on origin and destination, as well as the age, the sex and the median income of migrants. For more information or to enquire about the concepts, methods or data quality of this release, contact Statistics Canada, Client Services (1-866-652-8443; 613-951-9720; fax: 1-866-652-8444 or 613-951-4745; saadinfo@statcan.ca), Small Area and Administrative Data Division.

MIGRATION de la page 17

l'ouest de Toronto, avec 33,4 migrants.

Les personnes qui ont migré dans les divisions de recensement de York et de Peel avaient tendance à se situer dans les tranches de revenu au-dessous de la médiane de l'ensemble de la région. (La médiane est le point au-dessus duquel se situe la moitié des revenus et au-dessous duquel se trouve l'autre moitié). Par exemple, le revenu médian des migrants dans York était de 24,400 $, soit 5 % de moins que le revenu médian de 25,600 $ de l'Ontario. Les migrants dans Peel ont déclaré des revenus de 23,500 $ qui étaient inférieurs de 8 % à la médiane de l'Ontario.

Nota : Les données sur la migration ont été dérivées en comparant les adresses inscrites sur les déclarations de revenus personnelles remplies aux printemps 2003 et 2004. Elles ont été ajustées en fonction des estimations de la population totale de juillet 2003. Elles reflètent les déplacements intraprovinciaux entre les régions métropolitaines de recensement ou les divisions de recensement (régions telles que les comtés, les districts régionaux et les municipalités régionales) ainsi que les mouvements interprovinciaux et internationaux. Les augmentations en raison de facteurs naturels (les naissances moins les décès) et par cause de migration doivent toutes deux être considérées pour le calcul de la variation de la population totale.

Les estimations de la migration sont offertes pour les provinces et les territoires, pour les RMR ainsi que pour les divisions de recensement. Cinq tableaux portant sur ces niveaux de géographie procurent des données sur l'origine et la destination ainsi que sur l'âge, le sexe et le revenu médian des migrants.
